

February 2025 Show & Tell

Edith Hubbard

In the spirit of use what you have I pulled the fabric and wool appliqué from my stash and finished it in time to hang in the living room this winter.

This is the mystery quilt from Bonnie Hunter 2023, finally finished. This quilt is a gift for my daughter and son in law, made in her bedroom colors of gray and white with a bit of navy.

Her birthday was February 16, and I'm so glad to finish it in time.

Jane Moore

This is my granddaughter's graduation quilt. Fabric is from a Kaffe mystery fat quarter bundle and pattern is Picnic from Cluck Cluck Sew. The border was inspired by last month's meeting. I'm quilting her now with hot pink thread and quilt rulers.

I had made a Rainbow sun years ago using many colors. I decided to make one only using 5 different fabrics. They look like spinning galaxies. I'm giving this to my granddaughter for her 18th birthday.

You might be a quilter if you think you need a larger house just to photograph your quilts better! This quilt is a variation of the Pattern Spring Linens by Phoebe Moon designs. It measures 86x101" and I used the fabric bundle Transparency Watercolors from Modern Quilt Studio. MQS is using the bundle for the current Sweet Tooth Mystery - but I decided to skip this mystery and thought I'd use the fabrics to make a bright and happy quilt.

This is the backing I pieced together for the Spring Linens/Rainbow quilt top. I used up every single scrap from the 1/2 yard cuts (including the binding) and managed to find fabrics in my stash, so no fabric was purchased to complete the backing.

Susan Egner

This dragonfly quilt has been waiting to be finished for a number of years. It was fun to choose the wing fabrics.

Kathy Steere

This small 6" x 12" quilt was made for a contest. Alas, it was not selected as a winner, but it was a fun little piece to make.

"Seashell Secrets"

Hidden chambers with iridescent walls can be found when a shell is sliced open. I love shiny, sparkly fabrics and raided my stash to make "Seashell Secrets". Or is it "She Sells Secrets"??

What do they say about writing in the sand...?

YES, all the loops stitched on the yellow fabric are actually words

Materials used - brocade, swimsuit fabric, satin ribbon & cotton.

Techniques - raw-edge fusible applique and free-motion quilting.

Kathy Steere

While cleaning up my studio, I ran across this small piece of hand-dyed fabric. Between having trees on my mind and LA burning, "Renewal" practically made itself. It measures 10" x 21" and is made with cotton fabrics, fused raw-edge applique, then free-motion quilted.
